Seven Essex Residents Die In Collision

Six Named Squires

Ben F. Weir
State Press President To Address Club

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The names of five new members of the Academy of Squires were made public today.

The honorary organization was founded in 1960 by the late Gov. James T. Blair Jr. to pay homage to Missourians who have contributed substantially in service to their community, state or nation.

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes automatically became a member when he took office as governor. These five new members were chosen:

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, retired, of Moberly and New York; Frank P. Briggs, Macon newspaper publisher and former U.S. senator; Dr. Franklin McCluer, former president of Westminster College, Fulton, and more recently president of Lindenwood College, St. Charles; William A. McDonnell, St. Louis banker and railroad executive, and Dr. Charles Allen Thomas, past president of Monsanto Chemical Co. in St. Louis.

They will be taken into membership at a luncheon in the executive mansion Nov. 1. Their admission will make the total membership of the academy 55.

Plan Space Rendezvous

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. AP — The next U.S. manned Gemini flight will include a modified space rendezvous, called station keeping, it was learned today.

Details of Gemini 7's flight plan came to light as engineers and scientists sought causes for the failure of an Agena rocket, which canceled the first actual attempt to rendezvous and dock two satellites in space Monday.

Station keeping is similar to airplanes flying in formation. Air Force Lt. Col. Frank Borman and Navy Cmdr. James A. Lovell Jr., the Gemini astronauts, will try to keep within 100 to 300 feet of their Titan 2 second-stage booster for two and one-half orbits.

The United States attempted rendezvous exercises on the last three Gemini missions. All failed.

Travelers Sing For Kiwanians

The Travelers, a high school singing quartet, entertained the Kiwanis club Tuesday night at its meeting at the Holiday Inn. Terry Burke, the leader, sings tenor and plays the banjo. Steve Matthews sings baritone and plays the guitar. Mike Hopkins sings bass and plays the bass fiddle. Sue Foster sings soprano.

A meeting of the anniversary committee of the club was held. The club was organized 30 years ago in October and received its charter from Kiwanis International in November.

The Committee is working out a program for the club's 30th birthday celebration.

Witness Mum At Klan Hearing

WASHINGTON AP —

The House Committee on Un-American Activities questioned another reluctant witness today about Ku Klux Klan activities in North Carolina. It got no answers.

George Franklin Dorsett, 48, who the committee said is from Greensboro, N. C., refused to say even where he was born.

He followed the pattern of a number of earlier Klan witnesses in declining to answer questions.

SHARON LYN GARNER has been selected homecoming queen by students of the University of Missouri. She will reign over the 1965 Homecoming, Friday and Saturday. The daughter of M/Sgt. (Ret.) and Mrs. B. M. Garner of Freeman, she is a senior in the college of education and represents Chi Omega. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will crown Miss Garner between halves of the Missouri Tigers—University of Nebraska Cornhuskers football game Saturday.

ST. LOUIS AP — Sixty members of the International Association of Ironworkers climbed back on St. Louis' Gateway Arch today after a one-day work stoppage. The keystone section is to be placed Thursday.

The workmen stayed off the 630-foot high structure Tuesday on orders of union officials who wanted assurance that the arch was safe. Kenneth Chapman, National Park Service project director, inspected the arch and reported that it was "perfectly safe."

National Park Service officials said they didn't believe the work stoppage would delay placement of the final eight-foot, 10-ton arch section Thursday.

The cast for the show is made up of 12 dancers, 24 singers, and a live band, the N-Vaders, a group of rock'n' roll musicians from Lilbourn and New Madrid high schools. The N-Vaders will provide all of the music except for special singing numbers. Dancers will do routines and will back up some of the novelty acts.

Special music will be performed by Mary Ella Stone singing "Somewhere", James Crumley, "Green Fields", Bobby Riggs, "Whole Lotta Shakin'", Tommy Gee, "Alley Oop", and Paulette Crumley doing a medley of songs from the motion picture "Mary Poppins". Suzanne Caldwell, Joanna Duncan and Mary Ella Stone will set the mood for folk music with a yodel trio, having the chorus as a background.

The evening will be climaxed by the coronation of kings and queens from the Lilbourn high school, Lilbourn junior high, and Lilbourn and Marston elementary schools. Since candidates have been selected, each class has performed a variety of tasks in order to earn money to buy votes for their favorites. Candidates chosen:

Lilbourn high — Janice Atchley and Jerry Redden, seniors; Bobby Riggs and Darlene Gremore, juniors; Karen Turner and Kenny Koll, sophomores.

Lilbourn junior high — Virginia Yarbro and Mike Barnes, freshmen; Norma Floyd and Russell Riggs, eighth grade; Jackie Blankenship and Larry Spight, seventh grade.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Wednesday, October 27 is Bluebeard's Wedding Anniversary.

Some jet airplanes have movie screens and show you movies while you're flying here or there. Now cars may have movie screens on the trunk exterior, and as a safety device yet.

A screen manufacturer has brought out a reflective screen that you hang on the outside of the trunk. If you get in trouble at night, you unroll the screen and, instead of a "Donald Duck" cartoon, you display a sign that says, in effect "Watch It" or "Help". For the dull moments when you're waiting for the tow truck, you can, of course, run off "La Dolce Vita" or a John Wayne western.

One of the favorite sports of inventors and companies is to devise new gadgets and gimmicks to help the night-time motorist avoid trouble and rear-end collisions. They are all based on the idea that, if you have to pull off the road with a flat or engine trouble, you need a warning device to let oncoming cars know about your trouble. There's little sport, after all, in having a fast-moving Volkswagen stop suddenly in your trunk.

One of the simplest, most effective and cheapest solutions to this problem is to paint the inside of your trunk, or the inside of the lid, with a reflective paint that you can buy in most hardware or paint stores.

If you do this, come trouble, all you have to do is open the trunk and you have a brilliant warning, several feet square, that motorists just can't miss. No matter what you do, you can't forget to carry this warning along with you wherever you go at night -- and it can't burn out or have batteries that run down.

OYSTER HALL OF FAME

The oyster, as seen by Charles Dickens, is "secret and self-contained, and solitary." Now comes word that at least in Chincoteague, Va., home of some of the nation's finest oysters, all this splendid isolation will soon be a thing of the past.

Mrs. Henry Leonard and 14 women working with her have acquired a house and a plot of waterfront property and plan to move the house to the property and open an Oyster Museum -- or perhaps it should be an Oyster Hall of Fame. The focus will be on Ostrea Virginica, but other oysters from around the world will also be on display. "Japan even wants to send us a display of pearls," says Mrs. Leonard. Chincoteague oysters are usually firm and fleshy and big, and mighty fine eating. But the industry is in a tough way. Maryland and Virginia waters in 1880 yielded 117 million pounds of oyster succulence. Today production has dropped by at least two thirds, largely because of Chesapeake Bay silting from the Susquehanna, York, and Potomac rivers.

Once again, however, oyster cultivation is growing rapidly, particularly at Chincoteague, which is off the Virginia shore of the Atlantic. Empty oyster shells are placed on sand bars. Oyster "spat," the organism from which oysters grow, attaches to the old shells and in time grows into edible oysters.

Belletrists have traced the great Oyster Myth back more than three and a half centuries to one Henry Buttes, who wrote in 1599: "The oyster is unseasonable and unwholesome in all months that have not the letter R in their name." Actually, oysters are fatted in spring, and taste better, too, because at this time they begin to store glycogen, an animal starch, in preparation for the summer spawning season. (Any oyster eater knows, of course, that the bivalve is more nearly balanced nutritionally than any other food.)

It was James I of England who remarked for the ages: "He was a bold man who first swallowed an oyster." And it was one John Shedd who wrote: "It is the sick oyster which possesses the pearl."

The Colonel said "A frustrated man needs a hobby -- a frustrated gal needs a hubby."

The highway beautification bill, signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson, is one of the most significant accomplishments of the 89th Congress.

It is a start. In some respects a bad one but a start.

Congressman Paul Jones, our good Democratic neighbor from Kennett, voted with a majority of Missouri Congressmen against this bill for good and well documented reasons. We appreciate their reservations about this bill even though we are happy that this legislation became law.

During the next quarter of a century if the United States avoids becoming a materialistic slum, nature's beauty must be preserved and greater attention must be paid to conservation of natural resources and to water and air pollution. This frankly means that the federal government must regulate business and industrial enterprises more than it has in the past.

This may be an unpleasant fact and it may be that some people will be damaged financially but it is necessary.

One of several reasons why Missouri members of Congress voted against the highway beautification bill was that because of constitutional limitations the state may lose almost $20 million in federal funds. The new law gives states two years to comply with so that the loss can be avoided but that is not sufficient time.

While the thought of the state losing such a large sum is not pleasant, the need for the law is overdue. If Missouri is denied any federal money the responsibility for the state's failure to get it rests on the shoulders of its state legislators.

Just why the billboard lobbyists have proved to be more effective with state legislators than with congressmen is a mystery but it is a fact.

Missouri and many other states have refused persistently to enact laws to adopt reasonable regulations controlling billboards on interstate highways in order to qualify for a federal subsidy. State rights are often a battle cry but here is another instance where the federal government was forced to act because the states refused to act.

Since 1958, when a billboard bonus law was enacted, only 25 states have agreed to control billboard advertising along interstate routes.

Only $500,000 in bonus money has been paid to states by the federal government for control of less than 200 miles of interstate highway. This is less than one per cent of the interstate mileage already completed. That is all there is to show for seven years of effort. This is a dismal and disgraceful record of state kowtowing to the outdoor advertising industry.

Billboards are objectionable when they shield scenery and when they dot the landscape in such a variety of shapes and at so many different spots as to give the landscape a hodge-podge, slum-like appearance. When they hide a junk yard or a city slum from the motorists' view they perform a service.

Some give tourists needed information about accommodations. Some such signs will be permitted on a regulated basis under the new law.

The harassed owners of small service businesses now located off interstate or primary highways is entitled to both consideration and sympathy.

Their legitimate advertising needs should be treated with consideration by the secretary of commerce under the new law but they have no right or license to become despilers just to promote their business. Abuses must be ended. The unsightly mess must go.

There has been an equally urgent need to control junkyards, particularly the automobile graveyards along major highways.

In this the states also have abdicated their responsibility. So the federal government has stepped in.

The highway beautification bill for which both President Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, fought so hard and at times exerted unreasonable and intemperate pressure to obtain, is in some respects a bad law. A better one might have been passed but it hasn't been.

The new law can be amended. If enforcement is firm but careful, reasonable and restrained it will fill a need that will be welcomed by most Americans.

After all these years almost any start is preferable to none.

The other couples at the Honeymoon Lodge were surprised to see the 90-year-old man lead his 19-year-old bride into the lobby. Determined to find out how this weird situation came about, a woman tactfully asked the young bride about it the next morning. "Listen, sister," explained the 19-year-old (much wiser than her tender years). "If somebody hands you a check for a million dollars, you don't stop to examine the date, do you?"

BEST FOOT FORWARD

All we get so busy sometimes that we tend to ignore the way we look.

Though not necessarily a bad thing, this situation may give others some bad impressions of us.

That's what has happened to many of the nation's service station operators. They are in the most competitive end of a highly competitive industry, and they stay busy keeping America's 93 million motorists rolling along in safety.

While they are rendering this service, however, some stations have earned justifiable criticism for such things as garish banners and signs and generally untidy housekeeping. This has resulted, on occasion, in loss of customer and neighborhood good will.

Facing this problem squarely, gasoline dealers across the country are making real efforts to upgrade the appearance of

NEW YORK (AP) -- Quitting time is as much a daily ritual in the American business offices coming to work in the morning.

If you check the lowing herd in your own white collar zoo, you might note the following familiar characters at the hour of closing:

Methodical Milton -- Somebody stole a paper clip overnight from Milton 15 years ago and he is determined never to let it happen again. He puts everything that is on his desk inside his desk, checks each drawer carefully to see that it is locked, then locks his file cabinet, padlocks his typewriter and hides the cushion of his swivel chair in his locker.

Fun Loving Freddy -- As soon as Milton is gone, the office boy, who has keys to everything, opens Milton's desk, puts a well-chewed apple core in the top drawer, then relocks it. Milton will worry for a month how the apple got there.

Hangover Harry -- He has spent the day hiding out in the washroom. At 5:29, still a bit foggy, he wheels in and calls out, "Anybody ready for lunch? I found a great place -- the house buys every third martini."

Suburbanite Sam -- In the summer this prisoner of the outer spaces sneaks out at 5 p.m. so he can spend more time whacking away at his crabgrass before dusk. In winter he starts wrapping up in heavy clothing at 5 p.m. so he can make the long voyage home without freezing.

Madcap Molly -- The office Cleopatra never gets much done after 4 o'clock. From then on she tours the place, sitting on the desk of one junior executive after another, swinging her shapely legs and indulging in gay banter. Her big hope: One of them will weaken and take her to dinner and a movie.

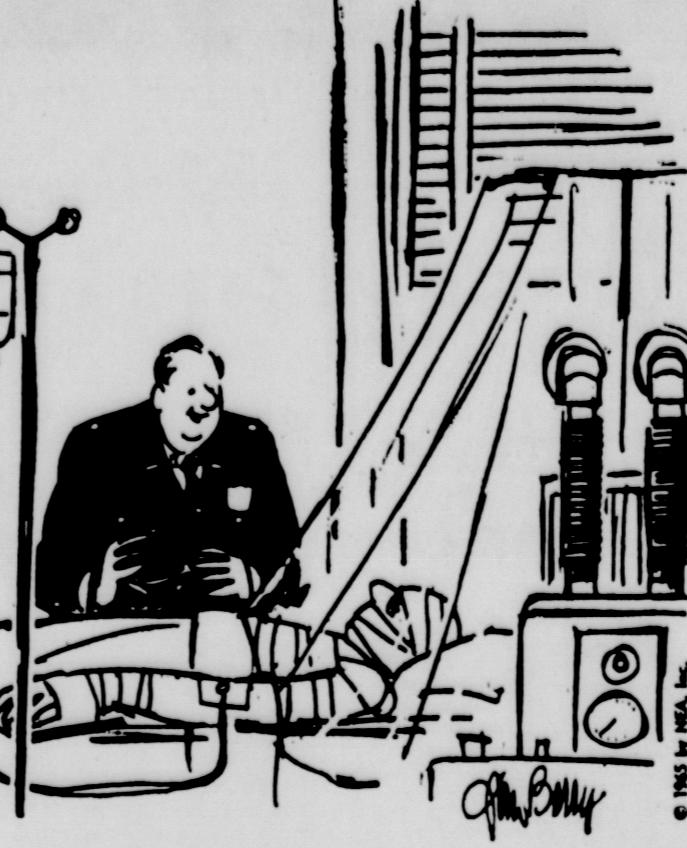

Light-Fingered Leo -- The office wolf has everything tidied up at 5:15. Then he stations himself near the door, hoping he can get in one more pinch as the girls from the stenographic pool pass by.

The Great Man Himself -- As soon as Leo goes, the boss clumps out to the empty room, looks around at the empty desks.

"What a menagerie," he mumbles. Then, as he goes around switching out the lights, he grumbles:

"Why do I have to think of everything around here?"

BERRY'S WORLD

"Great news, Sarge--you've been cleared on that charge of 'police brutality'!"

their stations.

In ten states, petroleum associations this year are sponsoring "Service Station of the Year" contests with the cooperation of civic and governmental leaders. These contests emphasize the importance of uncluttered driveways, clean rest rooms, neat displays of merchandise, and an overall well-kept appearance.

In other states, too, oil companies and petroleum trade associations are encouraging good housekeeping by dealers.

Industry sources report that about 96 percent of the more than 200,000 service stations in the United States are owned or operated by independent local businessmen. A few may fall to put their best foot forward. But the vast majority who do so deserve our congratulations and our respect.

After the wedding the newlyweds went to their honeymoon nest and the groom began his advances in earnest, "Why is it," exclaimed the blushing bride, "everytime I go out with a man it ends up this way?"

AN ESSENTIAL QUESTION

The Mining Record, Denver, Colorado, says: "Few, if any, bus, truck or barge lines could operate today if they had to pay the same percentage of their gross receipts for the construction and maintenance of the roads and waterways they use as a railroad pays for the construction and maintenance of its rail lines. Few, if any, public power or rural electric concerns could compete with privately-owned power companies if they had to pay the same rates of interest, taxes and other costs that privately-owned power companies pay."

This is the conclusion drawn following an analysis of the latest returns on the nation-wide continuous field survey being conducted by the organization.

Asked what would further increase small and independent business expansion, 85.8% state that the enactment of the so-called "plowback allowance" would accomplish this objective. This principle, incorporated in a bill now before the Congress by Rep. Charles Chamberlain of Michigan would permit a business to invest back into that business 20% of a year's profits up to a maximum of $30,000 in any one year from capital equipment, inventory, or on accounts receivable, without paying taxes on this part of the earnings.

The survey now has over 50,000 respondents and shows that 32.8% have expanded in the past year, to provide 3.2 new jobs per expanding business. Projected over the nation's 4,500,000 independent enterprises the results indicate some 1,500,000 enterprises expanded, to provide some 4,500,000 new jobs.

In addition, while the majority of the independent business proprietors indicate they would have no substantial problem in borrowing money to expand, they are reluctant to do so.

Until the government does permit the small and independent operator to reinvest profits to expand, all these other verbal gyrations purported to aid expansion are worthless.

"Why do they need a 'hot line' to Moscow?"

"The teen-agers have all the other phone circuits tied up."

"SO WE LEAVE IT TO THEM. It's not your imagination. There ARE more buses on the highways."

They are carrying passengers on scheduled trips, as usual. But you meet more and more of them headed for some mystic place called "Chartered."

Wherever this Shangri-la may be, it's Utopia for the bus companies, which are happily reporting big gains in tour and charter revenues.

The chartered bus boom began with trips by high school senior classes to historic spots.

Now, people of all ages -- too young or too old to drive and in between folks who simply prefer to "leave the driving to us" -- are taking chartered tours from one day to several weeks, from a few miles to across the country.

Business firms bus their employees to company outings. Clubs, lodges, churches, women's organizations, circles of friends and neighbors hire a bus and enjoy a fun flight. Some groups even set up a bar and card tables in the aisles, the rascals.

One thing these tension-filled tourists have especially noted: When "we" is driving instead of "we," it's amazing how much better the other drivers behave.

When all is said and done, there's generally more said than done.

Despite the hue and cry raised in Washington about aiding small business as a means of providing employment and ending poverty, government has yet to recognize the problem.

This is the conclusion drawn following an analysis of the latest returns on the nation-wide continuous field survey being conducted by the organization.

The Record goes on to cite other instances that it regards as examples of financial favoritism. But the two mentioned are vastly the most important. And it makes the unassailable

GESTAPO TACTICS IN THE USA?

The State Department takes a very important part in the actual armed forces war, although undeclared, the United States must fight against Communism. The attitude of the State Department toward Communism becomes a matter of great concern.

Otto Otepka's case lingers unresolved in the State Department bureaucracy. Otepka, once recipient of the Department's Meritorious Service Award, incurred disfavor because he refused to lie to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to cover up deficiencies in State Department security.

The Subcommittee found a conflict between Otepka's testimony and that of his superiors and recalled Otepka to explain his testimony. He produced documentary evidence to prove his statements.

The State Department asked the FBI to investigate Otepka for "spying for the U.S. Senate." The FBI found no evidence of wrong-doing. There is no such crime and Otepka had done nothing but tell the truth under oath. The witnesses deemed to have committed perjury before the Subcommittee were permitted quietly to resign but one was promptly rehired on another government job. Otepka was fired summarily, and his case has languished in the red tape of administrative appeal since 1963. Recently his attorney agreed to a State Department proposal that Otepka's appeal be heard by a retired Federal judge in the District of Columbia, who would make recommendations for a final determination by the Secretary of State.

NEW YORK: — Chemical science has found a white substance made with quicksilver that works wonders on wrinkled, roughened face and hands. Use it one time and it is entirely possible you will see improvement next morning. In a few days dry-skin wrinkles start to vanish. Many of the small ones around the eyes and mouth have already disappeared. But that is not all! "Old-Age" (weathered) brown spots on hands and arms—brown "age" darkness on surface of face and neck fades away! Rich oils lubricate pores so blackheads can slip out without squeezing. Sur-

Southeast Missouri Offensive & Defensive Players Of The Week

By DON VOELKER
The Southern Division Defensive Player of the Week is Butch Green, quarterback, from Malden. In the Malden-Chaffee game last Friday night, Green made one touchdown, passed for another, and set up a touchdown. Green also made several tackles.

The Offensive Player of the Week for Southeast Missouri in the Southern Division is Gary Ashcraft from East Prairie. The East Prairie Eagles beat the Gideon Bulldogs 41-0. Ashcraft, ran 11 yards for a touchdown; ran one yard for a touchdown; intercepted a pass and ran 28 yards for a touchdown; and set up another touchdown with a 42 yard pass. Until the Eagles victory over Gideon they had not scored a point all year.

The Northern Division Defensive Player of the Week is Richard Lay of Poplar Bluff who made 10 tackles and intercepted a pass at his goal line. The Poplar Bluff Mules whipped the Dexter Bearcats last Friday night, 19-12.

The Offensive Player of the Week in the Northern Division for the Southeast Missouri area is a boy from Perryville, Larry Smith. In the Perryville - Kennett, Smith scored one touchdown, passed for two, and set up another. Kennett, 12; Perryville, 32.

Benny Eason has been chosen Defensive Player of the Week for the Sikeston Bulldogs for his action in their game with the Cape Central Tigers last Thursday night. Eason did a real fine job on defense against Cape Central by making over ten tackles.

Two Sikeston boys tied for the best offensive player in the Cape Central-Sikeston game, Mike Garner and Wayne Limbaugh. Sikeston wasn't able to score until Limbaugh, with eight minutes and 50 seconds left in the game, finished a drive by running 14 yards to Central's 11 yard line, where, on the next play, he handed the football to Mike Garner, who went 11 yards over the goal line for Sikeston's only touchdown of the game. The Bulldogs were having a rough time even coming close to scoring until Limbaugh started running the ball.

10 Shell Limit

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- First and scanty reports indicated good compliance with the 10-shot regulation on today's opening of the goose season at Swan Lake refuge.

To keep the "skybusters" from shooting at anything in sight and spoiling the hunting for themselves and everyone near them, the conservation commission this year ruled that no gunner on the public hunting area at Swan Lake could take more than 10 shells with him.

Two groups of hunters checked in early today with their limits of geese, two Canadas per man, and they still had shells left over, Fred Veach of the commission staff reported.

Another group of three hunters checked in without shells but with five of the six geese limit.

Veach said it was a lot quieter on the managed area of the refuge for this opening. He said at least three farmers who operate hunting areas outside the refuge also have adopted the 10-shell limit.

Cards Trade

White, Groat, & Uecker

PHILADELPHIA (AP) -- The Philadelphia Phillies obtained first baseman Bill White, shortstop Dick Groat and catcher Bob Uecker from the St. Louis Cardinals for pitcher Art Mahaffey, outfielder Alex Johnson and catcher Pat Corrales.

The deal obviously opened the way for other trades, especially for the Phillies, who already have slugger Dick Stuart at first base and both Bobby Wine and Ruben Amaro for shortstop.

White and Johnson apparently were the key figures in the six-player swap. It was known that the Phillies were disenchanted with Stuart and figured to look for help at first base.

In St. Louis, Cardinals Manager Red Schoendienst called Johnson "one of the finest young right-handed hitters in the league."

"And Corrales is a hustling, outstanding catcher," Schoendienst said. "Johnson can fit right into our right field picture and Corrales, teamed with Tim McCarver, will give us the best catching department in the league."

Schoendienst said he realized that giving up established players like White and Groat creates some problems.

"But we have two fine shortstops in Jerry Burchek and Del Marvill, and they'll fight it out for the job next spring. And at first base we're going to try Bobby Tolan, George Kerner and Tito Francona."

Defensive back Johnny Roland has handled the ball 45 times for 612 yards and scored or passed for 20 points. Nebraska's Larry Wachholz, the national punt return leader with 420 yards, has kicked for 29 points. Colorado's Frank Rogfreshmen, coaches were optimistic about the chances of the squad, a feeling shared by league observers, who rated SEMO as a contender.

But a steady attrition of key players through injuries, a resulting lack of depth and experience, and a few sub-par performances by veterans, have added up to a surprising and disappointing 0-6 mark.

With not much to lose, and considerable to gain, Knox has indicated that he will be seriously reevaluating his personnel this week, and that where possible younger players may be given a shot at more varsity experience.

Although coach Kenneth Knox

hopes his squad can salvage some glory from the final four games of the season, thoughts almost by necessity will have to be turned to next year and to the grooming of younger and less experienced players on the squad.

Saturday's loss to defending MIAA champion Kirksville all but buried what had promised to be a much more successful season for the Indians. With 18 lettermen back and one of the school's finest crops of

Pensions Insurance, Drive Against Disease Aid Elderly

EDITOR'S NOTE — Few measures of the first session of the 89th Congress got more attention than the famous "medicare" package. But it's only one of many far-reaching measures in the health, Social Security and pension fields. This is the second of five articles on the legislative output of the first session.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bigger pensions for the nation's elderly, insurance against the financial ravages of illness in old age, a drive against the diseases that menace all Americans —

Pushed by President Johnson under his Great Society banner, these programs are counted among the most dramatic first-session steps by the 89th Congress in a bumper legislative year.

The price tag is big: An increase of nearly $5 billion in Social Security taxes next year, and a share of the near-record $119.3 billion appropriated by Congress.

If you are one of the more than 19 million Americans who is 65 or older, the government has placed in your hands—and your wallet—a vast new range of benefits.

Overshadowed by the $6.5-billion package of medical care and Social Security benefits is an array of other programs to deal with ailments—physical and mental—that can strike at any time of life.

Already the government is contacting millions of Americans who are on the Social Security roster to tell them of the new medical care provisions which begin next July 1.

One is a basic hospital insurance plan. You are covered if you are 65 or older. This is so even if you don't draw Social Security payments because you are still working and earning a good living.

The other is an optional program that will pay most of your doctors' bills if you are over 65 and agree to pay $3 a month out of your Social Security pension.

Under the same law, that payment has been increased by at least $4 a month.

Here is an example of what medicare will mean to a man over 65, living largely on Social Security:

Stricken with a heart attack, he spends 40 days in a $27-a-day hospital room.

That adds up to $1,080, an overwhelming bill for a man of modest means.

Under the hospital insurance program, all but the first $400 of that amount will be paid.

The new law entitles an elderly American to as much as 60 days hospitalization for $40, with the government paying the rest. After that, for another 30 days, the patient will pay $10 a day. The Social Security insurance plan will pay the remainder.

Beginning in 1967, an elderly patient could leave the hospital and recuperate in a nursing home, with insurance paying for his first 20 days. Then, for up to 80 days, the government program would pay everything over $5 daily.

Under the optional insurance on doctors' bills, the patient pays the first $50 and 20 percent of the remainder. That means that if the same heart patient ran up a $500 doctors' bill, he would pay $140 of it. His $3-a-month insurance program would finance the rest.

Applications for the optional coverage are being mailed out now by the Social Security Administration. There's a March 31, 1966, deadline for people already receiving Social Security.

There are other benefits in that legislative package. Social Security payments were boosted 7 per cent, retroactive to the first of the year.

A man receiving Social Security should have received by now a check equal to 56 per cent of his monthly payment, to cover the retroactive increase.

With the increase, monthly benefits generally range from a minimum of $44 for an individual to a top figure of $309.20 for a family.

For wage earners under Social Security, this over-all package means a sharp boost in Social Security taxes next January. The employer tax share also will be bigger.

If you earn at least $6,600, Social Security taxes will cost you $277.20 next year.

This year's top payment, on the first $4,800 of income, was $174.

Government experts think there may be some measure of offsetting benefit for the under-65 wage earner who buys his hospital insurance. This would be in the form of possible lower private rates as elderly people curtail or drop their private health coverage.

Congress did not stop with benefits for the ailing and elderly—it enacted programs designed to combat crippling and killing diseases.

President Johnson declared his goal is a five-year increase in the average American life expectancy over the next decade. He said that would put the average at 75 years.

One new law launches a three-year, $340-million campaign against cancer, heart disease and strokes. Johnson said those ailments will claim seven of every 10 Americans who die this year.

The money will be used to set up regional centers designed to spur research, training and education in combatting the ailments.

Congress also has acted to aid medical education and to build, on a matching fund basis, up to $560 million worth of new health research facilities.

Another $340-million federal project will pay up to 90 per cent of the cost of regional health centers.

Eventually, that could establish up to 30 health centers, most of them at medical schools across the country. Johnson said they would spread to all corners of the nation dramatic new methods of dealing with killer diseases.

Congress looked to the very young, as well as the elderly, in enacting health legislation. One bill offers $44 million in federal grants to help finance immunization programs aimed at five contagious diseases that can afflict children.

Another $224 million was voted to help staff community mental health centers.

"Now it is time to take more of the mentally ill out of asylums and keep them and care for them in their home communities," said Johnson.

The President added that one in every 10 Americans is in need of mental health care.

Congress ordered one warning of possible danger as well as steps to combat disease. Beginning Jan. 1, every package of cigarettes must bear this message:

"Caution. Cigarette smoking may be hazardous to your health."

Next: Poverty and housing.

To fill decorative pillows with shredded foam, use a No. 3 can with both top and bottom removed. Leave an opening in the pillow just large enough to insert the can, then put the shredded foam through the can with a cooking spoon. I use a smaller can to stuff toy animals with foam or sawdust.

Thant Says China Must Take Part in Disarmament

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General U Thant said today the United Nations would "be able to contribute significantly toward the progress of disarmament" only when "the one nuclear power outside the United Nations can be involved in discussions on disarmament."

He made that obvious reference to Communist China in arguing that "the United Nations must enjoy universal membership." He said disarmament was only one aspect of the problem because "universality of membership also is desirable from the point of view of the economic and social activities of the United Nations."

Thant, in a radio and television interview with the Japan Broadcasting Corp., began his discussion of universality by saying Pope Paul VI had mentioned it in the U.N. General Assembly Oct. 4. He thanked the Pope "for his very inspiring speech."

As to any conditions for universal membership, Thant said that was for the U.N. members to decide — "to formulate procedures and arrangements for the involvement of all countries and all states in the world to be here, to come here, and to participate in all activities."

The Pope's remarks have been subject to various interpretations. He urged the assembly delegates to "study the right method of uniting to your pact of brotherhood, in honor and loyalty, those who do not yet share in it."

"Act so that those still outside will desire and merit the confidence of all; and then be generous in granting such confidence," he said.

Thant, in his interview, said the most urgent task for the current assembly was "to come to an agreement on the launching of peacekeeping operations."

He noted that the assembly had set up a special committee to study the problem.

He added that in the disarmament field, the assembly should focus its attention on "nonprolif-

Movie Debut Of Godfrey Difficult

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Arthur Godfrey is making his movie debut under great difficulty. He is required to portray the father of Doris Day and he doesn't feel at all like the father of Doris Day.

Godfrey ruminated over his problem when he reported for lunch after a rough morning on the set of "Glass Bottom Boat." It is a dilemma that might give pause to the most methodical of method actors.

Iteration of nuclear weapons and nuclear powers" and "the banning of all nuclear and thermonuclear tests, including underground tests."

He said the first was "the most urgent problem" because there were possibilities that the present five nuclear powers would grow to "10 to 15 or even more in the next few years" and then the world would have to face "the grim prospect of possible annihilation."

He complained that at the midpoint of the U.N. development decade, "the results achieved so far have not been very significant. Two-thirds of the world's population are now living on one-sixth of the income of the world. And 1.5 billion people have a life expectancy of 40 years or less."

"Many developed countries are rendering aid," he said. "But if the developed countries, if the rich countries, are apathetic or indifferent regarding the plight of the developing countries, then the situation at the end of the development decade will be very serious."

He sent "warm wishes to the people of Japan," he said that in technology and culture they "are paramount in Asia" and their cultural traditions and material achievements "for centuries have been a pride of Asia."

The Daily Sikeston Standard, Sikeston, Mo. 5
Wednesday, October 27, 1965

"Oh Boy," he sighed. "I did the scene six times this morning, and I still don't think I got it right."

Although Godfrey may not look as though he could have fathered Doris — nary a gray hair has invaded his ratty thatch — it is numerically possible. He admits to being 62, which makes him 20 years older than Doris.

Aside from the difficulty of the father-daughter relationship, Godfrey is enjoying his first fling at film acting.

"I've had offers before," he said, "but I never was available to take them. Except once, Fox offered me the father's role in 'State Fair,' and I said I'd do it."

"I never heard back from them. I must say after seeing the picture, I was just as happy about that."

Even at 62, Godfrey has no notion of slowing down his pace as an entertainer. "Snuck," he said, "there's nothing in life I like better than doing a show."

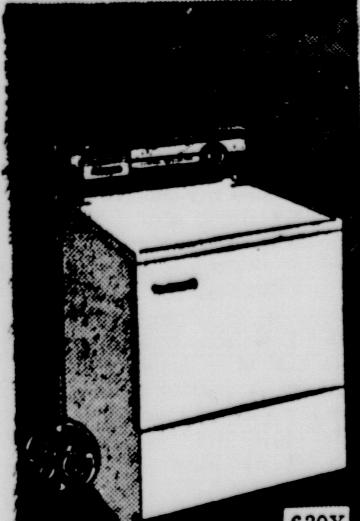

More movies? He'd be delighted. Television? He's doing four specials this season, including the Macy's Parade at Thanksgiving and Pasadena's Tournament of Roses on New Year's Day. Everett Freeman, coproducer of "Glass Bottom Boat," is talking to him about a series.

It is those books which a man possesses but does not read which constitute the most suspicious evidence against him.

Dear Ann Landers: Please do us teen-age girls a favor and publish this in the paper.

How can a girl who isn't especially beautiful keep a fellow interested without letting him get away with murder? My cousin who has gone steady with five different guys says the best way is to let a fellow make slow gains. Her system didn't work out very well. She is now in the Florence Crittenton home for unwed mothers. Somebody made a few gains she hadn't planned on.

Another girl says it's best to let the boy know from the first date that good conversation is all he is going to get because boys respect girls who draw the line from the very first. Maybe she is right but she sure stays home a lot.

I am not an extremist. I believe that the best policy is to stay in the middle of the road. What do you say? -- PUSSYCAT

Dear Pussycat: Get out of the middle of the road, kiddo. That's where most of the accidents happen.

That girl who stays home a lot has the right idea. When she does go out it will be with the right kind of fellows. The girl who feels she must resort to intimacy in order to keep a boy interested admits she has nothing else to offer.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers booklet, "Before You Marry-Is It Love Or Sex?" enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

MUCHDOWNS

A plane coming in for a landing at a small airport thumped the runway three times before it finally came to a sudden stop. When taxiing to the hanger the pilot radioed the control tower for the time of his landing, so as to enter it in the log. A quiet voice inquired, "Which one, sir?"

In a small provincial town, a poor unwed girl was about to give birth. Since she was destitute, the hospital bill was paid by the town's treasury. Later, the father was discovered and was hauled with a heavy fine. When the treasurer's report was read at the annual meeting, it was discovered the township had made a handsome profit on the unfortunate event.

One of the town's wits rose and announced: "I recommend we breed her again!"

But television's great race is conducted by having the individual network research departments add up the Nielsen ratings achieved by each network and dividing by the number of shows to achieve an average. There was great rejoicing and relief at CBS, which had trailed NBC slightly two weeks ago.

There were some pink checks at NBC where there had been brash early predictions of a ratings victory. ABC made no comment.

Tough Morning For TV

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The

three major television networks had a tough morning Monday.

First thing was the publication of the second national Nielsen ratings of the new season.

Then the Gemini 6 flight was scrubbed about 45 minutes before the two-man space capsule was scheduled to be launched.

It is hard to say which event caused the most turmoil in network headquarters. The cancellation of the space mission meant hundreds of thousands of dollars were down the drain since personnel and equipment had been deployed widely to cover the event.

The national Nielsen report may have had even more money riding on it. This is an estimate of the size of television audiences achieved by projecting viewing choices of a sample of about 1,200 homes which are supposed to reflect accurately the preferences of all 54 million television homes.

The A. C. Nielsen Co. reported that during the two-week period ending Oct. 10, the three most popular programs were, first, the Sunday broadcast of the World Series, followed by "Bonanza," NBC's ratings champ of last season, and then the Saturday World Series game. A CBS variety show starring Andy Griffith, Don Knotts and Jim Nabors slipped into fourth place, followed by Andy Griffith's own show and "Gomer Pyle," in which Nabors stars. Arrest Youth In Malden Sex Case MALDEN -- Bobby Nathan Houlthouser, 19, of Malden air base, was charged Monday with assault with intent to rape by Prosecuting Attorney Charles H. Baker and is being held in Dunkin County jail at Kennett. Houlthouser was arrested Saturday by Malden Chief of Police R. M. Thompson and Officer Bob Dockins after authorities learned that he might be the person responsible for two weeks of terror in Malden and Bernie.

Thompson said his office first was informed of the activity of a "sex maniac" on Oct. 10 when the parents of a girl reported to the police that a young man had made an indecent exposure of himself to her.

On October 12 a young girl was attacked back of the First Baptist Church. Her parents reported that the attacker got her down and tore her clothing but she was able to fend him off by striking him with her purse and running away.

Two girls in Bernie reported to authorities there that a man had exposed himself in an indecent manner to them.

Friday two teenage girls were confronted by the same experience in an alley across from Croon's Clinic in Malden and immediately called the police. After searching the area, the officers came to the conclusion that the offender must have a car and thus was able to make a quick get-a-way.

Friday evening Thompson received a tip as to the identity of the attacker and arrested Houlthouser. He denied the charges at first, Thompson reported, but after he was faced with information of former arrests in other cities for the same offense, he admitted that he was the attacker.

Houlthouser was employed for a brief time as a nurse at Dunkin County Memorial Hospital in Kennett.

Missouri Press Report From Edward Long

Petition Asks End Fast Time

Special agents of the Internal Revenue Service have used electronic devices to illegally invade the privacy of taxpayers in Missouri.

This and other findings were disclosed when my Senate investigating subcommittee held public hearings in Kansas City recently.

Internal Revenue agents have not only "bugged" rooms and tapped telephones in Kansas City, they have also asked local police and private detectives to do their dirty work. But testimony shows that over 100 Federal agents in Kansas City have obtained only three tax evasion convictions since 1960, with total sentences amounting to only 13 months.

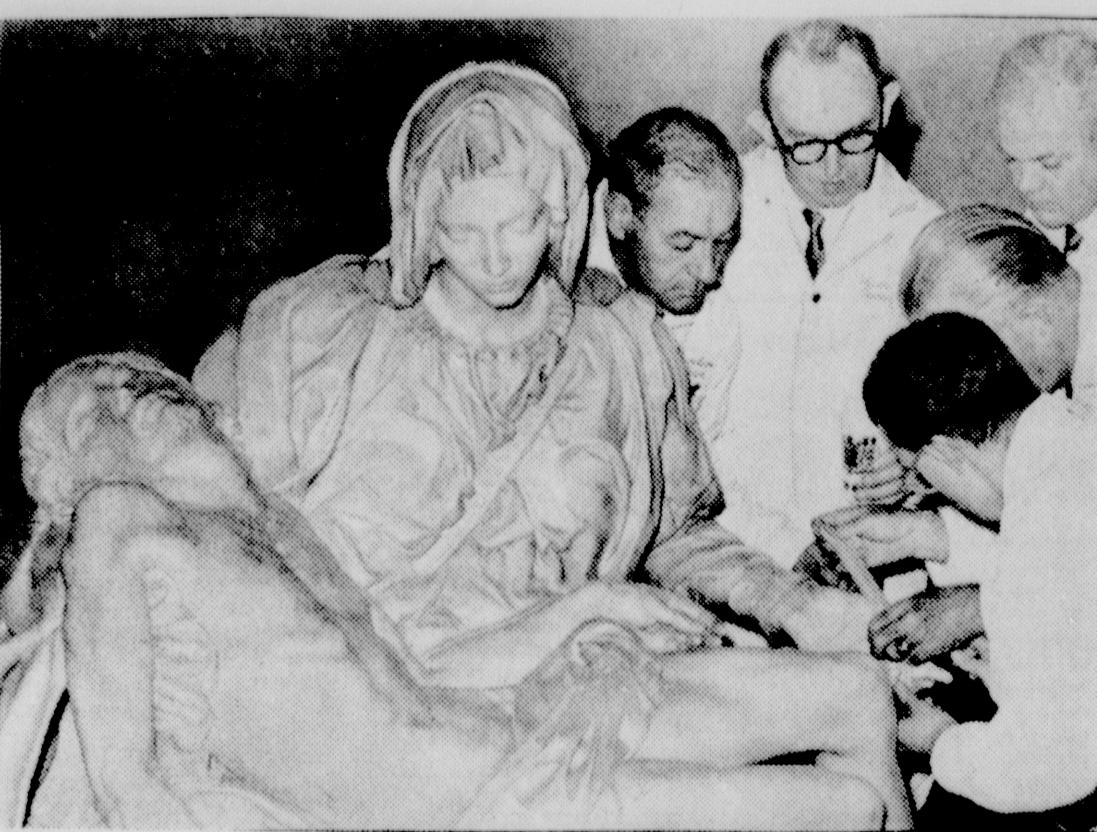

The ones they caught were not big-time crooks but local petty gamblers--the responsibility of local police rather than the vast array of Federal agents that have been used.

IRS has insisted on using a variety of hidden electronic eavesdropping devices hoping eventually to stumble across something big. In doing so, they have been listening in on the private conversations of many innocent taxpayers in the Kansas City area.

Many IRS agents in Kansas City have been trained as snappers at the IRS wiretapping, bugging and burglary school in Washington, D. C. The school trains agents to break IRS rules strictly forbidding the use of illegal wiretaps.

IRS agents do not believe they must obey the law. They persist in violating our constitutional rights, my investigations show.

The Subcommittee was shocked to discover that the Federal Bureau of Investigation

Entering Service Not Easy For Two

and the phone company have been cooperating to wiretap telephones in the Kansas City area.

Testimony in Kansas City revealed that IRS agents have been harassing taxpayers by prolonged investigations and expensive court proceedings.

A farmer from Taylor, Missouri, told the subcommittee that an IRS agent had threatened his bank president into revealing the farmer's bank account.

A Kansas City police officer testified that when he stopped an IRS agent for speeding, the agent threatened to examine the officer's tax records. Two weeks later the IRS requested the officer to produce his tax records. But the IRS could find nothing.

The more my subcommittee sees of IRS harassment, wiretapping, and snooping, the more we are determined to put a stop to these illegal, unconstitutional violations of individual privacy.

Petition Asks End Fast Time

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- A petition signed by more than 300 persons, calling for repeal of the city's daylight saving time ordinance, was submitted to the City Council Wednesday night and is to be considered at a later date.

The petition asks that the council, if it does not act itself, submit to the vote of the people of Cape Girardeau an ordinance repealing daylight saving time completely.

Councilman Hugh Logan said the city automatically will revert to standard time Sunday and that an ordinance could not be passed before that time.

It was explained that the basis for the present ordinance on daylight time here was for business reasons.

Window Painting
Contest In Kennett

KENNETT -- The Kiwanis Club will again sponsor a Halloween window painting contest, it was announced by Bill Walsh, chairman of the Kiwanis boys and girls committee.

Junior High School art teacher Eddie Hall will be in charge.

The event will be divided into two divisions -- classrooms and individuals.

Look out the window from the breakfast table and you see the bird after the worm, the cat after the bird and the dog after the cat. It gives you a little better understanding of the morning's news.

Johnson Tackles Problem That vexed Ancient Rome

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson vows he'll try to solve a problem that baffled ancient Rome and frequently ties America in knots.

The problem is transportation.

Roman engineers built practically indestructible roads winding over hill and dale through much of the known world.

But transport of goods on them was frustratingly uneconomical, for a strange reason. The Romans never learned to harness a horse properly.

They used an adaptation of the ox harness, and if a horse pulled hard he tended to choke himself. It was not until the barbarians from the steppes introduced a proper harness that costs of transport fell.

Like a Roman horse, traffic in developed modern countries tends to choke itself, despite or perhaps because of ingenious applications of the internal combustion engine.

The United States has enough private passenger automobiles to move all of its people simultaneously — all riding in the front seat. But what a traffic jam that would be!

Even with only part of the population out motoring, high-powered automobiles frequently make no better speed through congested areas than did horse-drawn omnibuses in the 19th century.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., has given much thought to passenger transportation in such heavily populated areas as the Washington-Boston corridor, lays emphasis on rails. He says one railroad track can handle as many people as 18 lanes of superhighway.

So the recently adjourned congressional session voted $90 million for research and demonstrations. One aim is to hurdle trains between the two Eastern cities at 150 miles an hour, perhaps eventually much faster.

The word from Texas is that the President will look for other metropolitan complexes where similar ideas could be tried out.

Moreover, the President is reported to feel that transportation policy generally is in a tangle. He is expected to propose to the next session of Congress measures for a more rational, uniform treatment of railroads, trucks, buses and ships.

If he does, the 1966 session will see some hard, protracted fighting. The railroads and truckers, for example, can be expected to deploy their lobbyists in force.

In essence the question is the same that the Romans suffered:

How can a nation best harness its horsepower?

Officials said pounding thunderstorms that hit Lebanon Saturday night drove tons of mud and debris down a river toward the city pumping station, choking some of the pipes.

fact

John Paul Jones, the famed naval officer of the American Revolution, whose victories at sea meant so much to its success, died at 45, embittered and broken physically. He died in France in 1792 and was buried in an unmarked grave. It was more than a century before his remains were discovered by the United States ambassador and an escort of United States ships brought his remains back to America, where a crypt had been prepared in the naval chapel at Annapolis.

$50,000
Gin Fire
In Parma

PARMA -- Loss estimated at $50,000 was caused Saturday night by fire in a warehouse of the E. B. Gee Cotton Gin Co. Exact amount of loss is pending a checkup of the damage.

Destroyed in the fire were 35 bales of cotton, 1,000 pounds of remnants, 200 bushels of seed wheat, 700 pounds of sodium chloride, five pounds of fertilizer, and other materials.

The gin plant was not harmed and the gin, now in a busy period, was in operation on Sunday. Some gins of the area are operating day and night.

The fire evidently did not have a great start, but some stored weed killer chemical flared wildly when it became hot, and spread the fire as well as damaging the building, a metal structure of hexagon shape. Some of the metal was blown 150 feet.

Firemen worked a long period of time to confine the fire to the one building. Sheds of the Parma Lumber Co. were endangered but had no fire damage.

The Gee cotton gin office was damaged, with the blast rattling some windows. Mr. Gee, who lives at Blytheville, Ark., has gins elsewhere in southeast Missouri and in Arkansas.

Cause of the fire has not been determined.

Chaffee Man Falls 30 Feet

CHAFFEE -- Dewain Bryant, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Bryant, was injured Saturday when he fell 30 feet from a tree.

Bryant and Edwin Vickery were pecan hunting on a friend's farm between Blomeyer and the Diversion Channel. Bryant climbed the tree to shake the nuts off when he fell, breaking off several large tree limbs on the way down.

He was taken to the Chaffee Clinic for treatment of bruises and muscle strain. A doctor said the tree limbs may have saved Bryant from more serious injuries.

New Car Sales Set Record

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — New car sales are setting a record this month, and by doing so are helping to offset the plunge of steel production to the lowest level in nearly two years.

These crosscurrents in the economy are important not only for what they reveal of the present state of industry and trade but perhaps more for what they might do to consumer and business psychology.

Steel long has had the reputation of being a basic industry. When mill production booms, the public thinks all must be well with the rest of the economy.

Auto sales long have been regarded as the chief clue to how the public feels about the present state of affairs and about future prospects. New car sales are a test both of how much money the public has to spend and of its willingness to spend it.

So now steel production is falling and auto sales are rising. Economists are quick to come up with explanations of both factors and of their apparent contradiction.

That cars are selling faster this October than last may not be as glamorous as it seems at first glance. That steel production is falling and new orders coming in slower than expected may not be as calamitous as it sounds.

In the first 20 days of October 547,000 American made cars were sold, compared with 374,000 in the like period of 1964. The industry counts on selling enough more to push October's total above 800,000. At mid-month, the dealers were selling 64 per cent more a day than a year earlier.

But comparisons can be tricky. This year the new models were displayed later. October is seeing the first chance the buyer had to get a 1966 model; a year ago the 1965 models had been around for some time. Also, last year General Motors was struck and many dealers were short of GM cars.

In the case of steel, the drop in production for eight straight weeks, with signs that the decline is continuing, also must be put into perspective. The mills now are producing at less than two-thirds of capacity, at the lowest level since December 1963.

But most of this drop had been expected. It resulted from the buildup in stocks by consumers who feared a steel strike. This was averted by a new labor contract settlement early in September. Consumers have lots of steel on hand and aren't pressing the mills for shipments.

But what is worrying the mills is that the drop in new orders, although that too was expected, is more severe than first thought likely and is lasting longer than the mills had hoped.

No Peace Feelers in Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (AP) — Whatever its other results, America's large-scale entry into the Viet Nam war has failed so far to produce a meaningful peace feeler from North Viet Nam.

This report comes from U.S. diplomats, who for six months have searched for any promising Red response to President Johnson's April 7 offer of "unconditional discussions" with the governments concerned.

One reason for the introduction of U.S. combat troops in the South and air attacks on the North, Johnson said at the time, was to make "clear that the only path for reasonable men is the path of peaceful settlement."

Since then the Viet Cong monsoon season offensive has come and gone on a much smaller scale than U.S. officials expected. The beefed-up U.S. ground forces often gave the guerrillas a bloody nose, and American bombers struck north with regularity.

Now the same Washington sources who once predicted rethinking by Hanoi this fall are reporting that the Reds seem as determined as ever to slug it out.

If anything, Hanoi may have toughened its line.

A few months ago U.S. policymakers figured North Viet Nam might not be insisting on its four-point plan — which includes a withdrawal of foreign forces and acceptance of the Communist program in the South — as a precondition for talks. Now Red propagandists seem to be demanding the four points as a prerequisite.

This adds up to a gloomy outlook for a diplomatic solution any time soon. Instead, U.S. diplomats expect hard fighting ahead on the military front, and there is more talk about winning the war that way — without a peace conference.

On the Communist side, morale is a vital problem for Hanoi. The Viet Cong live in greater peril and hardship than their South Vietnamese government opponents.

The will to fight on for a vague and distant reward is the guerrillas' strongest armor, and peace talks could eat into that.

So for the Redleaders, a military solution may continue to be more appealing than the conference table. North Viet Nam is still declaring that the "defeat of U.S. imperialism is beyond question."

And if the tide of battle goes against the Asian Communists, they have room in doctrine and experience for a tactical shift, laying low to strike again later.

Johnson voiced hope April 7 "that peace will come swiftly."

At the same time he added:

"But that is in the hands of others besides ourselves. And we must be prepared for a long continued conflict."

A French minesweeper was docked in the Mediterranean throughout a particularly blistering August. A new admiral, making a surprise inspection, was furious to find the entire crew, from the captain on down, dressed in swim trunks to spray the decks — and one another. After an icy-faced tour of the deck, the admiral faced the crew. "When I return," he belched, "I expect to see every man on this ship bearing the mark of his rank."

When he returned a week later, the entire crew, from the captain on down, was spraying the decks and one another, each displaying the stripes of his rank neatly sewn on the seat of his trunks. Janet Eysenck

LONDON AP — Sir Winston Churchill's famous London home, 28 Hyde Park Gate, will be sold at auction here Thursday and the buyer could be an American, said an official of the auctions — Knight, Frank & Rutley.

The house-really two houses, because it includes No. 27 Hyde Park Gate next door—is expected to bring between $224,000 to $280,000.

The auctioners have imposed no condition of sale concerning the use of the house or who buys it, but a move is under way to have it declared a historic building. It then could not be moved or substantially altered without official approval.

Sir Winston died in a ground-floor room in the house on Jan. 24.

Sir Winston moved into the house during World War II and bought No. 27 for his staff.

The adjoining houses are in a quiet dead-street in fashionable Kensington, just south of Hyde Park.

A garden, planted with trees, flowers and shrubs, goes with the house.

BERLIN (AP) — Beneath its glitter of prosperity, West Berlin is a city of tension and loneliness. Each day on the average, two or more persons commit suicide in the Communist-encircled city. Half a dozen more attempt to kill themselves.

"The wall and the fact of being enclosed create an atmosphere of tension," says Dr. Berthold Moldenhauer, a chief psychiatrist at Karl-Bonhoeffer Mental Hospital.

Last year there were 881 known suicides, or 40 for every 100,000 inhabitants. It was only 110 less than Denmark, which has more than twice the population.

Ellen Balaszekul, a psychiatric social worker, says "one of the most frequent reasons is loneliness of one kind or another." But she finds no single answer to why the suicide rate is high.

"The suicide rate in Berlin was high even before World War I," she said.

More than half of West Berlin's people are 45 or older, and about a quarter of the suicides are 50-60. The attempted suicides predominantly involve persons in the 20-30 age group.

Dr. Moldenhauer said most of the persons sent to the mental

WITHIN THE SHADOWS
IT is too early; the pale dawn has not as yet erased the gloom
That three long days and nights have hung
With shadows on their Savior's tomb.

IT is too early yet to see
That He is risen as He said,
Too early for dimmed eyes to catch
The certainty of hope ahead.

WITHIN THE SHADOWS
IT is yet early; but the tomb
Is empty now where He has lain.
He stands within the shadows
there,
Waiting to make His presence known.

Within the garden of your grief
Perhaps you think you are alone.
But, O dear hearts, His Word is true.
He waits to bless and comfort
you.

Claim 101 Viet Cong Die

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — While U.S. troops fanned out around Plei Me in mop-up operations, a toll of 101 Viet Cong dead was claimed today in fighting only 20 miles northwest of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman reported the heavy Communist casualties were suffered in an attack by an estimated two battalions of Viet Cong on a Vietnamese ranger battalion camped at Duc Lap.

Government casualties were termed moderate. American advisers with the rangers suffered light casualties, but all returned to duty after treatment, the spokesman said.

The rangers fought back, and artillery and air assaults were made quickly on the attackers. The spokesman credited the repulse of the attack and the high Viet Cong casualties to coordination of ground and air fire power.

At Plei Me, airborne American cavalrymen landed and swept south to clear out the last Communist stronghold threatening the Special Forces camp.

Hearnes Plan For Redistricting
Before Senate

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' plan to redistrict the House with a bipartisan commission went before the Missouri Senate for debate today.

The Senate's Apportionment Committee approved the plan Tuesday with one major change. It cut the size of the House from 163 to 154—the size decreed by the 1945 Constitution.

Under another committee amendment, the panels of 10 nominees to be submitted to the governor by each party would have to be selected by vote of individual committee members at a state committee meeting.

Then the governor would appoint a 10-member bipartisan commission to carve out new House districts.

Meanwhile the House Apportionment Committee finished hearings on a dozen different redistricting plans but took no immediate action.

To Spare Men, 26

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deputy director of the Selective Service said today that men over 26 have little to fear from the draft at this time — the bumper crop of postwar babies is filling the bill to a great extent.

"Under present circumstances, I don't anticipate that we'll be getting into men over 26," Col. Daniel O. Omer said in an interview. "Right now about 150,000 to 160,000 youths a month are coming into their 19th birthday, and this year about 2 million men will reach the age of 18."

Under present law, youths under 19 cannot be drafted. But Omer estimated that about 30 per cent, or 600,000, of the 2 million 18-year-olds will be eligible for induction next year. About 40 per cent will be excused because of school, he said.

Johnson Signs Bill

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — A visit to President Johnson's ranch by Secretary of State Dean Rusk shared center stage at the Texas White House today with the $2-billion rivers and harbors bill.

Rusk flew to the LBJ Ranch, 15 miles west of here, late Tuesday night after addressing a Southern Methodist University audience in Dallas. Spokesmen said no emergency was involved in his meeting with Johnson — that Rusk just happened to be in the neighborhood and was asked to drop by.

As for the omnibus rivers and harbors bill, authorizing 142 water projects, assistant press secretary Joseph Laittin said this morning Johnson has signed the measure into law. This was the second such announcement in as many days.
